

Saved From Drowning

William Chillies Rescued Near Seal Island By the Dyers

The power boat Hazel R., owned by Leslie B. Dyer of Vinalhaven, figured prominently in the filming of "Deep Waters," when the company was on location at Vinalhaven.

But last Sunday the little craft again found itself in the limelight—this time to being the means of saving a human life.

Mr. Dyer and his son Philip were pulling a string of lobster traps on the back of Seal Island, between Isle au Haut and Matinicus, when the keen eyes of young Dyer espied a boat drifting toward the breakers with apparently nobody on board.

And then they espied some object bobbing on the water. Drawing along side they discovered that it was a man who was being kept afloat by means of his oil coat.

Using a gaff the man was hooked out of the water, and he proved to be William Chillies of Vinalhaven, who had probably fallen overboard by the action of a choppy sea.

The Dyers, using first aid methods, worked 15 to 20 minutes over the body before it showed signs of life. Chillies was then taken to Vinalhaven and placed under the care of Dr. Ralph Earle.

TWO YOUNGSTERS RUN WILD

And Develop Friction Between the State and the Local Authorities

There is more than a little friction this week between the Rockland police and the Municipal Court on one side and the head of the State School for Boys at South Portland on the other. The situation arises over two boys, age 7 and 10, who have rolled up a record of petty thievery and delinquency for the past year or more.

Last week, the police brought charges of habitual truancy against them with the consent of school officials and the Municipal Court sentenced them to the State School for Boys at South Portland. The police officer who delivered the pair to the institution is reported to have been asked by a female employee who received them if Rockland officials thought they were running a kindergarten at the institution.

Things were pretty quiet for nearly 48 hours; there were no reports of ransacking of cars parked on the streets, no pilfering in stores, no habitual truants, no boats broken into and the world was good to the cops. The cause of most of such troubles were safely contained in the South Portland school, police thought.

A morning or two later they were snapped out of their ease as an official of the State School for Boys deposited the pair in the police office, dropped the papers, which the Court had issued for their confinement, on the Chief's desk, and allowed that he was not going to keep them. According to Chief Shaw, he stated that he had had the pair psycho-analyzed and that they were fit subjects for the institution for the feeble-minded at Pownall—and departed after a heated discussion with Chief Shaw over his right to return prisoners who had been ordered confined by the courts.

Shaw, puzzled as to his position in the matter after the Court had taken jurisdiction of the youngsters, just turned them loose, feeling that he had no authority to hold them longer and that it was a matter between the school and the courts.

Within 10 minutes after the boys had been informed they were free, they had stolen a flashlight from the fire station and thrown it at a fireman and ran as he caught them. Since that time, there have been calls one after the other as the pair rolled up a two-boy crime wave. A hotel called the same night that they were ransacking guests' cars and had tried to set a fire in back of the buildings. A storekeeper called only yesterday and allowed that he needed help as the kids were going through his store like a tornado.

Informed Monday of the action taken by the State School for Boys, Judge Dwinall of the Court and County Attorney Harding are looking into the situation.

There are those who question the school's right to return a prisoner committed to the institution by the courts and point out that if one State institution can do it why not others if they receive prisoners who might upset the calm routine of their establishments.

Tuesday morning, it was revealed that the family to which the children belong has settled in Thomaston, even though they live in Rockland. They have not been here the required number of years to relieve Thomaston from welfare care of them.

The two boys were placed in a Thomaston home, which is licensed to care for children, Monday afternoon. A hearing is scheduled to class them as neglected children and to make them wards of the State. This procedure takes 10 days but in the meantime Thomaston cares for them and Rockland car owners and store operators can breathe a little easier—unless the pair decide to come to town for a visit without permission of their keepers.

COST OF THE BOG FIRE

Bills Paid By the City For Labor Already Amount To $6,800

There is the possibility that the heavy costs of the Bog fire may be borne entirely by the State through tax abatements to the city, according to City Manager Farnsworth. He stated Thursday that he intends to ask the State to assume the costs of the wild-lands fire as it did in communities which were hit by forest fires last year.

He pointed out that by law the State must assume one-half the cost with the community being liable for the remainder. In view of the action taken last year, he believes that a petition to the State for abatement of the city's State taxes equal to the amount of the remainder in not all out of order.

Expenditure of municipal funds on the fire to date totals $6800, all of which is for labor. The figure represents 9200 man hours with wages ranging from 50 to 70 cents per hour for boys to 70 cents for men, average being 68 cents. This figure does not by any means constitute the total cost, he said, as many workers have not yet filed their wage claims. There are many, he said, who of course, will consider their labors a public service and will not enter claims.

Bills for use of trucks, tank trucks and other equipment have not been presented, he explained. Bills yet to come for labor, trucks, bulldozers, and materials may well bring the total cost of the fire above the $10,000 mark, he pointed out.

The fire, while under control, is still not officially out, according to Chief Van E. Russell. Patrols are being maintained against a possible outbreak.

Russell reports that the fire spread into small sections of the town of Warren on one end and Rockport on the other with the greater part being contained within the limits of the city of Rockland.

Red Cross expenditures in supplying food, clothing and first aid for the firefighters have not yet been compiled, according to Isaac L. Hammond, Knox County representative of the national organization. The figure is known to run into several thousand dollars, possibly in excess of $5000.

Father Of Barlow Bill Wants To Know About the Spoilage Factor

An inspection of several thousands if not all, of the more than 169,000 ballots cast in the Sept. 13 referendum voting on the Barlow Bill, Tabb labor bills appears to be a possibility.

Behind the move, if it develops, is the desire of James E. Barlow, "father" of the Barlow Bill, to find out the number of spoiled ballots cast in the referendum. Barlow said Wednesday he wants the "spoilage figure" to gain a better picture of the public's reaction to the proposed legislation.

Barlow conceded that an inspection would not change the vote which killed both measures. He expressed belief, however, that thousands of ballots cast for the bills, had not been counted because of errors in marking them.

"I'm interested in knowing how many ballots were spoiled and whether or not the ballots showed an intent on the part of the voters as concerns the approval or disapproval of the labor bill," Barlow said.

THE STORY OF FRED PAYNE

Maine's New Governor Has Led a Life Of Prominence and Business Activity

(By F. A. Winslow in the Boston Sunday Globe)

Governor-Elect Frederick George Payne upon whom the voters of Maine placed the strong stamp of approval.

When Maine's newly elected Governor was a student in Lewiston High School, and admittedly bestowing much of his energy upon athletics, he wondered casually what his mission in life might be. Gifted to an unusual degree with the power of speech, and a keen analytical mind, the legal profession presented its attractions. He would be a lawyer.

And when his High School days were over he went to a school of accounting in Boston, became fascinated by that study, and changed his mind over night about being an attorney. He would be a business man.

And he progressed so rapidly in this vocation that he became Maine's Commissioner of Finance and Accounting, with the result that Maine's governmental affairs will be managed the next two years, not by an attorney, but by a man who has devoted his life thus far to business and finance.

Frederick George Payne was born in Lewiston, July 24, 1903, son of Frederick G. and Nellie (Smart) Payne. His father was a job printer, widely known in Maine brass band circle as director of Payne's Second Regiment Band, which was named for him. He was a past potentate of Kora Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine, and a past exalted ruler of the Lewiston Lodge of Elks. His mother, Nellie Smart Payne, was a daughter of Marcus and Ellen Smart of Fryeburg, and taught school many years in the Fryeburg area. She was active in the Eastern Star, and Daughters of Rebekah, and prominent in Lewiston and Auburn social clubs.

Both parents are deceased. Gov. Payne is a graduate of Lewiston High School "where I was never an outstanding scholar," he says. But in athletics he was certainly outstanding. For he won his letters in baseball, football, hockey and track. He was quarterback on the varsity football team and pitcher on the baseball team. He later played on the Old Orchard semi-pro baseball team. In track he excelled in the shot-put and discus throw.

High School days over, young Payne went to the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, and from there to Bliss Business College in Lewiston where he taught accounting.

Affiliation with the theatrical industry next claimed his attention. He entered the office of William P. Gray, who operated the Maine and New Hampshire Theatre Company, a chain which also included the Olympian Theatres, Inc., now known as M. & P. Theatres. He served as disbursing officer.

After the death of Mr. Gray in 1928, he supervised operation of the theatres in Portsmouth, N. H., belonging to the Maine and New Hampshire Theatres Company. In 1930 he took over the management of the Augusta Theatres Company for W. B. Williamson.

A changing tide now developed in the affairs of the man, who was to become Maine's first citizen. He became interested in the lack of employment opportunities in Augusta and set to work with three associates to remedy it.

In the Fall of that year he became a Republican candidate for mayor of Augusta. A brisk campaign resulted in his election for two years, repeated in 1936 and 1938. The last named election was notable for he was chosen (Continued on Page Eight)

THE BLACK CAT

By The Roving Reporter

Alfred Benner hands me two garden specimens, which he alleges, are cucumbers. They are about the size and shape of small apples, and resemble nothing I ever found in my own garden.

Talk about weight reduction. The entertainer at The Thorndike Hotel this week is on a severe diet, and has taken off 87 pounds. But he still has considerable to go for he now weighs 337 pounds. A good center for some football team.

The Black Cat is disconsolate over the complete absence of blackberries this Summer. Seems like the scorching sun and no rain dried 'em up. I would swap a whole pocketful of pennies for a stab of blackberry pie, any time.

Stuffed owls, five in number, have been added to the menu at Hotel Rockland, but not the dinner menu. They have been strategically placed to scare away naughty pigeons, a la the suggestion which appeared in The Black Cat column Tuesday.

Tenant's Harbor Man Had Been In Poor Health

John K. Monaghan, 83, of Tenant's Harbor, was found dead in his yard about 5:30 p. m., yesterday, the apparent victim of self-inflicted gunshot wounds.

Funeral services will be held Sunday from Davis Funeral Home, Thomaston, at 2 p. m., with burial in Seaside cemetery. Rev. Earl B. Hunt of the Tenant's Harbor Baptist Church will officiate.

A native of Dundee, Scotland, he was the son of Peter and Mary Kinney Monaghan. He is survived by two sons, Lincoln and Carroll of Massachusetts, one grandson, and two sisters, Mrs. James Felt of Thomaston, and Miss Elizabeth Monaghan of Clark Island.

He is reported to have been discovered by Miss Mary Snow and Mrs. Lincoln Monaghan as they returned from shopping in Rockland about 5:30 p. m.

Dr. Charles D. North, Knox County Medical Examiner, investigated the case.

Will Be Tough Nut

Skowhegan's Hardy Grid-sters Face Rockland
Tigers Saturday

Rockland squares off Saturday afternoon at Community Park with the footballers from Skowhegan.
Rated one of the best teams in the State in their class and considered by some sports writers to be a potential stumbling block for even the big time teams from the larger cities, Skowhegan will be a tough nut for the Tigers to tackle.

Rockland, fresh from last week's win over Greenville, is developing into a fast moving team which the same sports writers have marked down as a coming outfit under Ken McDougal's coaching.

Most noticeable in the team improvements is the spirit of co-operation which is welding the boys into a solid, hard working aggregation. Whipped along by the desire to work toward a touchdown in which every man will have a part.
To date there has been no outstanding ball carrier. Last week, Deshon and Foote clicked with the scores. This week, other backs, perhaps McIntosh and Smith, may ring up scores while the others pave the way for them.

That Skowhegan will come to town determined to roll up a score is a foregone conclusion. That the lighter Rockland Tigers will be in there with equal determination to take the game is also certain.

THE COURIER-GAZETTE

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

For President—Thomas E. Dewey of New York
For Vice President—Earl Warren of California

[EDITORIAL]

MRS. SMITH'S CAMPAIGNING

The Republican National Committee was not long in recognizing Margaret Chase Smith's value as a public speaker. Directly after her overwhelming election she was engaged to deliver 10 speeches for the Dewey-Warren ticket. The States in which she will appear are Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Minnesota.

TROUBLE IN THE SOUTH

The Fall season must be a very uncomfortable one in the Southern States, threatened from the sea by devastating hurricanes, and from the land by a political turmoil which is shaking to their foundations the States located beneath the Mason and Dixie line. The hurricane has created a tremendous loss to property, especially the citrus crop, while the damage done by the political upheaval cannot be fully ascertained until after Nov. 2.

TRUMAN'S TWO TOPICS

President Truman in his campaign speeches is harping upon two subjects—the Republican Congress and the high cost of living. Congress has always been the pet target for critics since the first session was held. True, it failed to do quite a number of things some of us wanted, but it failed because of sectional differences of opinion, and because opposition from the Democratic minority and from the President himself. As to the high cost of living what did the Democrats do to prevent it during the 6 years they have been in power? Mr. Truman's speech writers had to find something to talk about and they probably figured that these two topics would stir up as much discord as anything else.

TRUMAN GAINS IN CALIFORNIA

The Truman-Barkley ticket gained six percentage points over Dewey-Warren in the second survey conducted by the Gallup Poll, but the Democrat team has still many yards to go before it can score a touchdown. There is a good deal of interest to see what the figures will show on the heels of the invasion made by both of the Presidential candidates.
Henry Wallace who is believed to have a considerable following in California, lost two percentage points in the latest survey.

NOT LOOKING AHEAD

Henry Wallace declares that he does not expect personally to be a candidate for the Presidency in 1952. That word "personally" sounds sort of like an anchor to the windward.

PRICES AND POLITICS

The nonpartisan layman finds himself more than a little puzzled by some of the politicians' tactics toward prices.
It is not unusual, of course, to see politicians working both sides of the street. But the current flim-flam over food prices—telling consumers, "We've tried to hold them down," while telling farmers, "We've held them up"—is unusually visible, not to say blatant.

We can't help but wonder how many Republican or Democratic leaders really expect to catch votes with this shenanigan.
The news and radio services being what they are today, even appeals in one section or to one group of voters are known to others. And reflecting that there are probably five times as many housewives as farmers, we wonder if both major parties are not playing with the buzzsaw when they claim credit for retaining wartime supports for farm prices.

Washington dispatches report considerable concern in the White House lest the expected drop in farm prices comes before the election—with farmer ire expressed at the polls. And President Truman—who has played so often the role of people's champion against inflation—takes pains to remind the farmers that he is the friend of price supports.
The political mathematics of this is beyond us—unless the farmers' interest in prices is so much larger than the consumers' as to outweigh the consumers' numbers.

Certainly there is no consistency in the position. Nor is there in the Republican appeal along the same line, particularly when Republicanism has so generally stood for noninterference with business. Even though both parties before election favor another continuance of the present price supports, they may well shift after November. For many farm leaders now favor advancing from 1950 to 1949 the date for applying a more flexible (and presumably lower) schedule.
They fear that if declining prices force the government into huge losses on crop loans, the public will turn against the farmer.—Christian Science Monitor.

Football Coaches See Maine
Again Winning the State
Series

Colby Coach Walter Holmer cast his vote Wednesday for the University of Maine's football team in the coming State series. He followed the example of Bates' Ducky Pond and Bowdoin's Adam Walsh who have predicted that the Orono Bears are the team to beat.
Coach Eck Allen of Maine has maintained a discreet silence.

Maine won the State championship last year. State series com-

"Though Maine has been weakened somewhat in the line by the loss of several key men through graduation," Holmer said, "it should have many replacements coming up."

Alden A. Stanley, proprietor of Stanley's Garage, Main street, Rockland, has announced the opening of his new Super-Filling Station at the corner of Main street and the entrance to the Public Landing.

This new building is a marked improvement to Main street and makes it possible for the Stanley Garage to extend its already large plant to handle any kind of repairs and overhaul work on any car or truck from the largest to the smallest.

In the main building is a complete machine shop, equipped to rebuild cylinders, grind crank shafts and completely rebuild any motor.
Also a radiator repair department and general car overhauling department.

The second floor of the main building contains Mr. Stanley's private office, the bookkeeper office, and the International Truck Sales office. Also a large store room.

A well equipped stock room on the ground floor with a large stock of parts for cars and trucks is under the direction of Arthur Stanley.

The International Truck department, Harry H. Hanscom sales manager, has been in operation for four years, and the number of International Trucks, large and small seen on our streets indicate the volume of business done by this department.

The new building, containing aligning and wheel balancing machines, wash stand with hot and cold water, tire department, also pit and doors to handle the largest trucks, and equipped with the latest new machines for this work.

The building also houses the super filling station, with rest rooms and waiting room all new with latest sanitary equipment.
Shell gasoline and lubricants will be handled at this station.

Mr. Stanley now has 10 men on his payroll and they are kept busy every day servicing and repairing cars for his many customers.

Maine's quota for the first call of Manpower Chief Captain Paul B.

physical and mental examinations will be given Oct. 7 at Dow Field, Bangor, and Fort Preble, South Portland. First induction will be about Nov. 15.

He said practically complete pected to be about 51,000. Merrick said.

Present totals include 2917 men

5393 born in 1928; 6092 in 1927; 6249 in 1926; 6655 in 1925; 6876 in 1924; and 9570 in 1922 and 1923.

It is from the oldest groups that first inductees will be taken.
Merrick said the present number of single non-veterans is 11,796, who are available for induction provided they are not deferable for other than family or military service reasons and can pass examinations.

COMPLETE FRAME STRAIGHTENING

A chassis misalignment is hard to detect by a car owner, but it has its effect on the riding qualities of the car, and it takes its toll in increased operating expense and wear on the motor and transmission units.

CAUSES

A severe strain placed upon your car, even at a moderate high speed, will cause chassis misalignment.

Come in our garage and let us drive your car on our

Insect Control Practiced

Centuries Before Christ
The practice of fumigation is not a new one. As early as the 12th century B. C. sulphur was burned as a measure to keep down insect infestations.

Different materials such as incense, smokes and aromatic substances were tried from time to time until in 1886 hydrocyanic acid gas was first used; and today it is one of the most outstanding fumigants on the market.

The scientific history of hydro-cyanic acid commences with the accidental discovery of Prussian blue by a German chemist early in the 18th century. Investigations of this compound led to the discovery of hydrocyanic acid, or as it was then called, Prussic acid.

The reason for the practice of fumigation is to aid the elimination of insects in homes, flour mills, cereal plants, grain storages and other types of buildings. The big problem is to make sure that the fumigant reaches the insect in a high enough concentration and for a long enough time to insure a 100 per cent kill. Insects breathe the toxic fumigant and are subsequently asphyxiated.

Theoretically, this practice amounts to introducing a lethal concentration of gas in an enclosed space for a certain length of time under certain conditions.

Saving Time on Farm

J. D. Bickie, specialist in agricultural engineering, Ohio State university, often wonders why a farmer who is eager to get a better compicker to save hours of harvesting time will store corn in an out of the way crib that compels the same man to put in extra days in feeding livestock. Building layouts on thousands of farms are 1880 models and quite a fraction of them were planned just before their owners left to gather up a few sacks of California gold in 1849.

Bickie claims a lot of time could be saved on thousands of farms by relocating some of the smaller buildings and by changes in the interior of the barns. Fifty extra feet of travel twice a day adds up to a 20-mile jaunt in the course of a year, and a bushel of corn carried one way on the trip would make a 10-ton load for the walker if he moved all of it at once. This university specialist claims that a farmer accepts his sentence to hard labor in doing chores because he can serve a little of it at a time.

A half hour early in the morning and repeated at night permits the farmer to use an installment plan to pay for the extra years he spends in the chore gang.

The forest industry is the second largest primary industry in Canada.

Basketball Exams

Monday Dec. 6 Fixed As Date For The Western
Maine District

The Western Maine District Board of Approved basketball Officials announces that its annual written examination shall be given Monday, Dec. 6 at 8 p. m. at the Northeastern Business College—School of Accounting, in Portland.

The written test compiled by the National Organization in New York City shall consist of 40 true or false questions of which the applicant may miss five for a passing grade.
Only those who are residents of Androscooggin, Cumberland, Knox, Lincoln, Oxford, Sagadahoc and York counties may apply for an application from Secretary Charles Koharian, 25 Nevins street, Portland. The deadline for acceptance of the application shall be midnight

Dec. 1.
In previous years, each individual Board would set its own date for examinations. But, since Dr. John Erown, executive secretary of the National Office has asked that only one written exam be given each year and that to be held on the first Monday in December, the other two Boards, Central and Eastern Maine, will also give it on the same date.

A Wyrzten Rally

Famed "Youth For Christ" Speaker To Be Heard In Rockland

Jack Wyrzten

"A few years ago a jazz-happy kid from Brooklyn was fishing through his pockets for a pack of cigarettes. He couldn't find any, but he did bring out a little red book. The Gospel of St. John, which a friend had given him. Highly contemptuous, he ripped open the pages, one by one, crumpled them up, and tossed them away to the chant of 'She loves me, she loves me not.' Thus does Clarence Woodbury, writing in The American Magazine, describe that dynamic youth leader, Jack Wyrzten.

But times have changed, and so has the heart and life of a young man who is today the most successful evangelist to youth in modern America. Jack Wyrzten is the founder of the Youth For Christ rallies that are sweeping the nation. Well over a million young people, bobby-soxers and their boyfriends, sing hymns, read their Bibles, and pledge themselves to live better lives, every Saturday night in the more than a thousand Youth for Christ rallies from coast to coast.

There was a visible ripple of excitement which passed over the 300 young people gathered at the First Baptist Church last Monday night when the announcement was made that Jack Wyrzten would be in Rockland on Oct. 28. One hundred and sixty young people from the Rockland area chartered buses and made a special trip to Boston last May to attend one of Wyrzten's rallies when more than 15,000 young people from all over New England gathered at Boston Garden, and these were especially thrilled at the news that a Word of Life rally would be held in the Community Building, Rockland, on that date. Youth for Christ promises more exciting news concerning this great Youth Rally.

Knox County Camera Club will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Farnsworth Museum. Members are asked to take cameras as there will be work in the studio.

Vesper A. Leach now has a new assortment of dressy maternity dresses, sizes 10 to 18, priced at $8.95 to $10.95. 77-1f

BELOVED LEADERS DEPART

Dr. Kent and Miss Coughlin Voice Sentiments Of St. Bernard's Parish

Miss Anna Coughlin, oldest member of St. Bernard's parish, left presents Rev. James Savage, center, and Rev. Archie Gillis, right, with a gift of money from the parish on the occasion of the farewell party for the two priests.

St. Bernard's Parish, young and old, men, women and children, devoted Wednesday to expressing its affection for, and its regret in losing its beloved spiritual leaders, Rev. James A. Savage and Rev. Archie Gillis, who leave today for new fields.

The day began with a Children's Mass at 7:15 a. m. when Fr. Savage gave them his farewell message. In the afternoon the altar boys presented gifts to Fr. Savage and Fr. Gillis and in the evening came a surprise reception and farewell by the entire parish, with Aime Beaudoin as a most effective master of ceremonies.

Entering the Parish room at St. Bernard's mid-evening after attending services in a neighboring town, Father Savage and Father Gillis were welcomed with musical greetings by the Rockland City Band, led by Thomas Fleming. The young people of the Sodality then sang the favorite songs of Father Savage and Dr. James P. Kent voiced the sentiments of the parish in these words: "I am not at ease here tonight. What few talks I've made I have been better qualified to give than this parting. By their fruits ye shall know them. Only in a small way do we know and appreciate the good work of these two priests. The transformation of this parish under their care has been nothing short of amazing. The material growth of the spiritual growth and the acquisition of the nuns are immense tributes of their labors.

"I can't help but think of the priests who will follow them. They are stepping into a fast pace. Father Savage and Father Gillis have been untiring, kindly, understanding and humble.

"Rev. Fathers, you have our love, our respect and our devotion. With you go our best wishes and our prayers. May God continue to bless you and sustain you in your good work for a long, long time."

Anna E. Coughlin, deeply-loved and respected Senior member of St. Bernard's and long-time Principal of Rockland High School, was most appropriately chosen to make the presentation of a very substantial gift of money from the entire parish to the retiring priests.

Miss Coughlin drew from her past experience in the classroom for the introduction of her address, saying, "I told the class that I did not like the loose way of speaking of high class or 'low class,' for I was afraid that they were confused."

Colored slides descriptive of his recent trip to Europe were shown by Rev. Ernest O. Kenyon at the Lions meeting Wednesday noon and at the Community Building that night. The latter occasion was a benefit for the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Peter's Church, and a silver collection netted a neat sum. The slides were interspersed with interesting comment by the Rector, who is very happy over his experiences abroad, and who saw things through the eyes of a keen observer.

A human heart pumps about 650,000 gallons of blood a year says the World Book Encyclopedia. This is enough liquid to fill 81 standard size tank cars.

Farnsworth Museum

Receives Anonymous Gifts Of Paintings To Be Used In Exhibitions

It was announced Wednesday by Director James M. Brown of the Farnsworth Museum that two paintings had been presented to the Museum by donors who preferred to remain anonymous. Both were painted in the 19th Century, the period in which the Museum has chosen for one of its fields of specialization.

The first picture to be received is a portrait of Anna Dennison McCoslin by her daughter, Cary E. Smith who lived in Bangor at the end of the last century and who studied under the noted painter Jeremiah Hardy on Main street in Bangor.

The Museum staff would be glad to hear from any one who knew this artist and her work. The second portrait is of high quality but as yet the artist has not been identified. It depicts a prosperous family of the 1870's or 1880's with near photographic realism.

These two portraits will be included in the exhibition planned by the Museum to be entitled "Changing Styles in 19th Century New England Portraiture." The emphasis will be on Maine personalities and Maine artists but the scope of the exhibition will be such that the Museum art in future in the Eastern United States in the 19th Century may be easily traced.

The Museum already owns three other outstanding Maine portraits which have been shown. Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Brewer of Brewer, Maine, are two portraits possibly by Jeremiah Hardy who was born in that city. Hardy was born in 1800 and died in 1888. His work is in national museums including the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

His teacher was the noted painter and inventor, Samuel Morse.

The third portrait, the handsome young Captain George Mansfield is by the popular 19th century painter, M. Vervoort.

It is by means of such generous and pertinent gifts that the Farnsworth Museum will build up a collection of paintings and other works of art which will be of very special interest to the people of Maine and will make the Museum a goal of scholars specializing in Maine.

Meetings continue to be held at the Museum's auditorium. The Registered Nurses' Club meets there on the 28th and the Medsok Regional meeting of the Maine Federation of Garden Clubs on the 30th.

Mr. Brown announced that additions to the equipment of the

"LADIES IN DANGER"

The benefit performance of "Ladies In Danger," given Wednesday and Thursday night, this week, at Town Hall by the Warren Civic Players, for the Congregational Ladies Circle, was a complete sell out, and scored a smashing hit.

With each role brilliantly played, and the production ably directed by George W. J. Carr, of Safety Harbor, Fla., and Warren, the Players proved again, their versatility, with the mystery drama.

Tense drama was mixed with sparkling humor, sound effects were realistic, and the attic scene of the play, was furnished with unusual items from horse-hide chests to men's leather boots. Every detail increased the interest of the audience.

The Players have again added to their reputation for a finished performance, in the presentation of this modern play.

Ushers for the show were the Misses Mary Jane Boggs, Elini Riutta and Alice Kenniston.

"David A" Is Sold

Former Owl's Head Craft Is Now Scallop Out Of New York

The highline redfisherman, David A., owned by Capt. Carl Reed of Owl's Head, has been sold to Chester M. Mayer of Orient, L. I., and is now scalloping out of New York.

Built in Thomaston by Morse Boatbuilding Co. in 1946, the craft was consistently highline boat for the port of Rockland with Capt. Carl Reed, Sr., as master and later with Capt. Carl Reed, Jr., in command.

The loss of this craft means that upwards of two and a quarter million pounds less fish will be landed yearly in Rockland until she is replaced. Figured at four and one-quarter cents per pound, the present rate paid for redfish, this loss represents several thousands of dollars less coming into the city each year.

Nation's Grangers

According to forecasts of the Department of Agriculture, this year's corn crop will total more than 3,500,000,000 bushels, an all-time high. We have harvested next to the biggest wheat crop in the history of the country, and other crops are generally good. This leads many people in the consuming centers of the nation to ask why the cost of living should not be reduced substantially and immediately.

There is some grumbling because under the provisions of the Stagall amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act the government attempts to put a "floor" under some farm prices at 90 percent parity. This was done at the beginning of World War II to assure adequate supplies of food, a prime requisite to the winning of the war.

It was also done to safeguard the farmers against a repetition of the disastrous deflation which they suffered during the reconversion period following World War I when literally hundreds of thousands of them lost their farms and homes, shaking our entire economy to its foundations.

The fact that inflation is stalking the nation today is not the fault of the farm population. Farmers have produced to the limit of their capacity, and they have worked longer hours than any other group. For consumers to find fault with the farmer today would be like biting the hand that feeds them.

The Department of Agriculture is authority for the statement that farm production costs last year amounted to more than the total farm income during any year between World War I and World War II. As an example of the way farm production costs have risen, during the period from 1909 to 1914, the average monthly wage of the hired man on the farm was $2.00, with board. The present figure is $105, with board.

During January this year the cost of feedstuffs was three times as high as in 1909. And when livestock producers and those engaged in the poultry industry know what that means. All commodities used in farm production now stand at 254 percent of the base period, 1909-14. Average weekly earnings of factory workers stand at 465 percent of the same level. Don't blame the farmer for the high cost of living.

It is being predicted in Washington that draft deferments will be tightened after the November election. Present exemptions are so broad that the services cannot meet their authorized strength. The draft law does not order the exemption of married men, fathers and farmers. It merely gives the President discretion to do so.

The biggest farm event Maryland has seen in many a day occurred at a great field meeting sponsored Aug. 18, at Jefferson, in the form of Frederick County. Poorly Grange, and to which fully 40,000 people came. The feature of the day was a farm "bits," in which a 200-year-old run down dairy farm was transformed during the single day into a modern working establishment. More than 135 farm machines and upwards of 500 men stared the day's activities, which were probably without parallel in all farm history.

The State Department is oiling up its machinery for a new round of tariff cuts just when wages and costs of production are reaching unprecedented heights. How much longer this can continue without driving American producers out of their home markets remains to be seen.

During the past three years net Grange membership of the country has increased nearly 125,000. Ice cream and soft drink makers are back of the movement to have a seven-cent piece added to our assortment of coins. This is intended to ease the squeeze between rising costs and a single-piece coin. A bill for the proposed coin was introduced at the recent session of Congress. Opposition comes from bankers and the manufacturers of cash registers.

An iron ore field in Labrador is believed to be as rich as and larger than the fabulous Mesabi deposits in Minnesota.

A Serious Decision

Public Taking Sides On U. S. Supreme Court's Pronouncement

Rev. John A. Barker, pastor of the Littlefield Memorial Church, hands The Courier-Gazette a copy of the Kiwanis magazine, from which the following article is clipped:

The public takes strong sides on the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court holding that religious classes cannot be held in public school buildings although they are used for dancing, basketball and political meetings! "In God We Trust"—but the Supreme Court rules that the Constitution says God must be kept completely out of our schools.

This decision is a serious one. The majority of the Court felt that "church and State" were unconstitutionally united because the buildings were built and maintained by public taxation. But, as Justice Reed points out, do we forbid everything of a religious nature on this ground?

Are we to forbid chaplains in our army and navy who are paid by public taxation? Is an American boy dying on a battlefield to be denied the comfort of some man of God in his last moments on earth? Are soldiers on some blood-soaked island in the far Pacific, or sailors on a battleship to be denied the right to attend religious services on government property?

The House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States open with prayer. Is prayer to be forbidden? Yet it is given on public property and the chaplains are paid from the public treasury.

At West Point there are three chapels—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish—built with government property. Yet, while the cadet must attend service in some chapel, he is free to select the chapel of his own faith. Does the Supreme Court propose to tear down these chapel buildings?

Under the Bill of Rights, the United States government helps pay the cost of veterans studying for the ministry in denominational schools. Is this illegal? No one ever did more than Thomas Jefferson to separate State and Church. Yet Jefferson, Madison, the fathers of the Constitution, were both officers of the State-owned University of Virginia and both approved "schools of instruction in the religion of their sect" on the college campus.

In the light of the above facts, it would appear that the Court did some personal legislating outside the Constitution.

The Lewis Blockade

Whenever John L. Lewis decides to blockade the United States of America, people take sides on the merits of his demands. That confuses the issue. The real issue is this: Should any law give any man for any reason the power to take this country by the throat and squeeze it until it yields to him?

In one of his previous strikes—and this was in war time—Lewis and his followers, of United States Steel, were in conference. Lewis is reported to have said: "The fate of the world rests on this rug" in the room where the two men sat. Not even the war could proceed until Lewis was pleased to permit it.

That's too much power to be given to any man. Yet the law gave Lewis the power to make the boss. The law should be changed. Industry-wide, or nationwide bargaining and control of a vital resource should never be in the hands of one man, drunk or sober. Absolute power has no place in this republic. Working men in the steel mills, factories and railroads have a right to work equal to coal miners.

Uncle Sam, You're Next

United States Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse, Bendix, and some other companies, have announced price reductions on many items affecting the cost of living. This seems to be an honest effort to stop the inflation spiral by men who are in a position to do something about it. Will their action be followed by others?

Uncle Sam, you're next. Are you

Named to Head March of Dimes

Brig. Gen. George M. Carter

Brig. Gen. George M. Carter, Augusta educator, soldier and civic leader, has been appointed Maine State Chairman of the 1949 March of Dimes, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announced today. It is General Carter's third consecutive year as head of the fund raising campaign in Maine.

The March of Dimes, conducted nationally each January, is the sole support of the National Foundation and its 2,800 local county chapters. Funds contributed to the annual drive pay costs of medical care and treatment for polio victims and finance the scientific research and professional education programs sponsored by the National Foundation. The 1949 appeal will be held January 14-31.

General Carter, for 20 years an educational administrator, has been teacher, coach and superintendent of schools in Washington, Wade, Perham, Caribou and Limestone, Maine. He served as a second lieutenant of Field Artillery during the first World War, and in 1941 was appointed State Adjutant General.

He is a member of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and a life member of the National Education Association. Mr. O'Connor, in announcing General Carter's acceptance of the March of Dimes chairmanship, revealed that when complete infested figures for this year are tabulated the toll of infantile paralysis in the United States from 1943 through 1945 may well exceed 100,000 cases.

"While the final answer to the mystery of poliomyelitis—the discovery of a cure and a preventive for the disease—lies in the research laboratory," Mr. O'Connor said, "the generous support of the American people is now more vital than ever before if victims of polio, children and adults alike, are to receive the care they must have to achieve maximum recovery."

going to cut the price of government bonds. Whatever private persons may do will be worth little unless government—the biggest spender and waster of all—cuts its costs. And not only the federal, but State and local governments as well.

The United States Post Office Department lost $300,000,000 last year. The loss is charged to you. The government has a liquidated Jersey Homesteads project. Houses costing $20,000 were sold as low as $2800. The loss is charged to you.

The government buys potatoes at a cost, with freight, of $4 a bag and sells them for one-cent a bag. Having bled the States white by federal taxes taken from them, the Administration proposes "federal aid" for education, housing, health, etc. The socialists and politicians cry for more of the sovereign cure—spending.

It is shocking that in the prosperous period from 1940 to 1947, the number of persons getting public assistance has gone up and up. Public relief has become Big Business.

Who will drive the money-changers from the temple. Where is the Andrew Jackson who paid off the last penny of debt? Where is the Grover Cleveland who vetoed hundreds of bills that robbed the public till?

—Samuel B. Pettengill.

A Busy Chamber

Camden Business Men Hear Reports On Many Vital Matters

Reports of activities along a broad front were given by committee chairmen at the Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Camden town offices, Wednesday night. President Earl Fuller presiding. A nominating committee was elected to prepare a slate of candidates for the board of directors at the annual election in October—Betty Foxwell, Ray Billings, Gilbert Harmon, Howard Holton and William Kelley.

Dr. David Mann, chairman of the health committee of the Chamber, gave an interesting report of a study being made by his committee of the water supply system of Camden and Rockport. One important point which has been brought out by this study is the relative location of the water pipes to the sewerage systems in the towns. Dr. Mann urged that as the sewerage system is extended and improved, care be taken to have the sewers at a proper distance from the water mains. Assisting Dr. Mann on this committee are Vernon Packard, formerly a sanitary engineer, and Allan McAlary, Superintendent of the Camden-Rockland Water Company.

It is planned to prepare a final report listing the requirements for an adequate water supply system, and a list of the present facilities. In the interest of safety for the children at the Elm Street School, Douglas Kelley, chairman of the merchants committee, called attention to the hedge on the corner of the school grounds, around the Conway boulder, and the need of having this clipped to a height which will not interfere with the vision of drivers coming into Route 1 from School street. Kelley made other suggestions to improve the traffic safety and parking problems, and told of the activities of the merchant's committee this year.

A total of 280 paid memberships to date for 1948 was reported by membership chairman, William P. Kelley, who said this brought the number of members to an all-time high for the Chamber of Commerce. Four new members presented by Kelley were voted in at the meeting: L. L. Morong, Robert Laite, Maynard Knight, and David Anderson. Forty-six new members had joined in 1948. Kelley said.

Albert Collins, chairman of special committees on waterfront cleanup and parking, said that many property owners had cooperated in the campaign to clean up the waterfront, and that this was a long-range project which could not be completed immediately. He also spoke of the assistance of the harbor master and the excellent co-operation of the fishermen and low crew in removing bait barrels from the town landing with the help of the new hoisting gear. Through the efforts of his committee, at the time of Town Meeting improvements were made possible in the parking area at the town landing, including lighting and spreading of calcium chloride.

ing the terms with wealth or poverty. So for the next assignment they were to define for me what they meant when they used the terms.

"So at the next meeting we worked rather stultifyingly on the proposition. At last a lad arose and said, 'My idea of a low class person is one who has nothing to share.' The defense rested its case. I rested, also.

"But since that time the pupil's definition has always stayed in my mind. Well, 'sharing' is the subject of my story. We have with us, tonight, two, whom we with reverence call Fathers. In brief, let us connect their work with the school boy's definition.

"Out of my pupil's clean, bright mind came the statement: 'It is great to share. Let us think of what our pastors have shared with us. Our children have been baptized, instructed, gently led to know the meaning of life here and hereafter. A convent has been established under the guidance of the Maryknoll Sisters whose special mission is to teach the Sunday School classes. There are many more good things which our fathers have labored to share with us. It was all so freely given. If they were sick or sorry, weary or dejected, we never knew; with us they shared only the good. There are wonderful things contained in the wonderful, every day word, Father. There is protection, guidance, generosity, affection, leadership, and all these we recognize as we speak to you, Father Savage and Father Gillis.

"Now that we have come to the turn in the road, we find it hard to say the things we wish to say; hard for us to make words tell of our gratitude for the things eternal you have shared with us. But it is my privilege to offer this token to you, Father Savage and Father Gillis, from your parishioners. From those with whom you have so generously shared."

MISS HELEN FOLLETT
Miss Helen Follett, who was born at Vinalhaven, Nov. 16, 1896, and who was a former resident of Rockland, died at her home "Sunrise Farm" in Montville, Aug. 23. The family moved to Rockland when she was eight years of age and she graduated from Rockland High School with the Class of 1914. Later she graduated from Goshen Normal School, and had five years of Summer School at Harvard in physical training and several winter evening courses in English literature at Boston University while she was teaching in Norward, Mass.

Her first venture in teaching was in the Benner Hill Grade School, where so many Rockland girls started. In the course of the successful teaching career thus begun she taught in Thomaston, Barley School grades: Rockville, Conn., grades and physical training; Norward, Mass., 10 years, physical training; Mount Vernon, N. Y., 16 years, physical training; at Washington Junior High and Edison Technical High. Four years ago she was retired on a disability pension. Injuries received in gymnasium work were the direct cause of her death.

Comforting words have come to the mother from the Board of Education, Mount Vernon, N. Y., the president of which wrote: "I trust that the memory of your daughter will be of some comfort to you in your hours of sorrow. The Mount Vernon School System lost from its professional staff one of its retired teachers who was recognized as a person of superior character and unusual ability."

Since coming back to Maine to make her home, Miss Follett had been interested in community affairs, especially in the school, in athletics and school clinical work. Last year she was president of "The Liberty Community Association." Down through the years she had made use of her musical knowledge in training school bands and orchestras. During wartime, she taught military marching to High School boys under supervision of Major Stanard of Mount Vernon.

Before a candlelit altar, adorned by trailing ivy, white gladioli, rubrum lilies and larkspur, Miss H. Vivian Ojala, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. William Ojala became the bride of W. Parker Emerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Ordway of Chestnut Hill, Mass. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a colonial bouquet of Fleur d'amour combined with white roses, stephanotis and maidenhair fern.

Matron of honor for her twin sister, Mrs. Bruce Gray of Watertown was gown in full-skirted aqua tulle with matching veil of tulle, caught by a coronet of talisman roses similar to her colonial bouquet, which she carried.

Leonard Emerson was best man. For her reception duties Mrs. Ojala was crowned in gray crepe accented with corsage of sweetheart roses and larkspur. Mrs. Ordway, the groom's mother, chose ice blue chiffon and wore a bodice corsage of larkspur and stephanotis.

After a honeymoon sojourn, Emerson and his bride will make their home in Lexington.

Soil Conservation

By Roy Gross, Soil Conservation Service, Waldoboro.

Andy Currie of Waldoboro and Fred Wickstrom of Damariscotta Mills, have recently completed their farm ponds with the exception of some work to be done on the emergency spillways. These ponds are primarily for fire prevention and irrigation but will be stocked with trout. Both dams were designed by the Soil Conservation Service engineer.

Wilson Carleton of Jefferson recently had a drainage system laid out for better drainage in his field. Drainage was necessary to grow the grasses and legumes desired. Charles Kinel of Warren has started construction on an earth dam which is to have a 14-foot top with 2:1 and 3:1 slopes. The top of the dam will be used as a roadway which in turn will decrease the grade of the road considerably. A number of farmers are trying out cover crops this fall to further reduce soil erosion. The crop will be plowed under next Spring to increase the organic matter and further reduce erosion.

Emery Richards of Round Pond is having a bulldozer build some waterways and drainage ditches. The ditches will be a "V" type with an even grade to dispose of the water readily.

Children in Glasgow, Scotland, believe in a Summer Santa Claus since a car and an ice cream wagon collided at cartons of ice cream cascaded over the road.

A Ship's Model

And Some Interesting Information Concerning Craft In Question

Some people will remember the last ship model, "Penobscot," which was on display in Sim's Restaurant window a few years ago. This was a three-masted vessel having her foremast and mainmast square-rigged and her mizzenmast fore-and-aft rigged.

The following was taken from the book "List of Merchant Vessels of the United States, 1891," by Harland Davis, Pleasant Point, who is now owner of the model.

Name of Vessel, Penobscot; rig, bark; gross tonnage, 1333.26 net tonnage, 1069.63; length, 187 feet; breadth, 37 feet; depth, 23 feet; when built, 1878; where built, Bucksport; home port (where permanent document issues), Bucksport, Me.

Official No. 150134; signal letters, J.S.V.G., principal owner, N. T. Hill. Readers of The Courier-Gazette will probably know more about the Penobscot.

Mrs. Riley W. Davis.

without opposition for the first time in the history of Maine's capitol city.

His three terms as chief executive of the city by filling all of the vacant factories in Augusta, Hallowell and Gardiner.

The Augusta tax rate was maintained without increase during the six years Payne served. He also provided for an expanded program of service, such as additions to school buildings, building of parks and playgrounds and sidewalks and highway construction.

Embodied by his success as mayor of Augusta, Payne in 1940, became a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination being defeated by Sumner Sewall in the primary election by only 2000 votes.

That same year he was appointed by Gov. Lewis O. Barrows as Maine's Commissioner of Finance and Director of the Budget, to work with the auditing firm of Ernst & Ernst for the reconstruction of the State's financial structure and the accounting and reporting procedures.

World War 2 brought about another important change in Payne's career. Resigning from his duties for the State he volunteered for service with the Air Forces.

In 1942, he was commissioned as captain and served as squadron commander of the 66th Airborne Group at Guster Field, Ala. He also served as assistant post administrative inspector. From there he was transferred to Nashville, where he served as administrative.

From there he went to Maxwell Field and was also in charge of all budget and fiscal activities of the Southwest Air Forces Training Command.

His next move was to Fort Worth, Texas, where he became Deputy Chief of the Budget and Fiscal Division of the Air Forces Training Command, covering the entire country. Then to the Headquarters Army Air Forces in Washington where he served as deputy chief of the Inspection Division of the Budget and Fiscal departments. While there he drew up the proceedings and methods used by the Air Forces for all of their operations.

He was honorably discharged as Lieutenant Colonel in 1944, and taking up his residence in Waldoboro, entered into business with his brother-in-law, John H. Miller, owner of the Waldoboro Garage Company of Waldoboro and Rockland, and the Tri-County Farm Equipment Company.

After his defeat for the gubernatorial nomination in 1940, Mr. Payne was convinced that he had no further political ambitions, and when the war ended he was content to settle down to business, although maintaining his keen interest in governmental affairs.

Friends had other views regarding his future, however, and for months preceding the Primary Election he was besieged with requests to enter the large field of candidates who sought the governorship nomination.

His delayed announcement was thought to have given his competitors a commanding lead in the contest, but he won the nomination by close to 8000 plurality.

Gov. Payne told the Globe reporter that he hopes to see a development of resources that will increase the wealth of the State and provide a greater earning capacity for the people. He promises to expand his views in that regard in his forthcoming inaugural address.

He also wants to see a sound tax revision which will adequately finance the necessary services of the State government on fair and equitable basis.

He wants to see an amendment to the old age assistance law which will place it on a sound basis and take advantage of the increased grant available from the Federal Government.

In short he wants to utilize business practices and methods of operation of the State Government so as to get closer to $1 of service for every dollar of taxes, and to make the government more efficient by eliminating duplication of effort.

Gov. Payne again emphasizes his campaign declaration that he has made no promises as to State appointments.

Turning for a moment to national policies he expresses the definite opinion that Dewey and Warren will win the election, and that the country will see one of the finest administrations for many years—for security at home and peace abroad.

"I like to fish," said Gov. Payne when asked as to his favorite diversion, adding "I am probably the worst fisherman in the world."

He is also a baseball and football enthusiast, and a great booster for the Red Sox and the Braves.

The new Governor brings to the Maine Mansion and State Capitol a wife whose beauty and personal charms will make her a popular social leader during the Legislative sessions.

Mrs. Payne, whose maiden name was Ella Hodgdon, is a native of Presque Isle, Aroostook County, but resided for a time in Waterbury, Conn. She came to Waldoboro to make her home with her sister, Mrs. John H. Miller, and where also resides another sister, Miss Caroline Hodgdon. Her marriage to Gov. Payne took place in 1944.

Mrs. Payne is a member of the Waldoboro Women's Club, but she is distinctly a homebody, with social inclinations secondary, and with all of a woman's love for flower gardens.

The permanent home of the Payne family is an unpretentious brick structure which stands on one of the side hills of Waldoboro shaded by huge elms.

Something of a coincidence is found in the fact that it is the same residence which served as the home of S. S. Marble, who was the only other Governor who has hailed from Lincoln County.

Gov. Payne has a son by a former marriage—Putnam Payne, who is now taking a course in forestry at

CAPITOL STUFF

By Governor Horace Hildreth

Augusta, Sept. 20.—Three hundred thousand people from all over New England and adjacent States are expected to view the State of Maine exhibits at the Eastern States Exposition, now open for a full week at Springfield, Mass. Among them are expected to be thousands of potential customers for Maine products, many of which are attractively displayed in the permanent and attractive State of Maine Building.

The huge and elaborate agricultural exhibit includes all types of canned and frozen Maine foods. A portion of a typical Maine blueberry field has been transported to the exposition. Highlighting Maine's outdoor sportsmen's exhibit is a 135-foot long scenic replica of a rippling pool fed by a 10-foot waterfall and teeming with large trout, rainbow and brown trout, supplied by the Department of Inland Fish and Game. The Sea and Shore Fisheries Department co-operated in producing an unique presentation of a modern fish market displayed in front of a rugged Maine coastal background. Here are to be seen fresh Maine seafoods and quick-frozen and processed salt water products.

Other State exhibits include forestry operations in insect, fire and blight control; Maine Highways Department snow removal operations and a model of the new Augusta bridge that will span the Kennebec River and a large industrial display prepared by the Maine Publicity Bureau.

If there are 205 natives of the State of Kansas residing in Maine, as Gov. Frank Carlson of Kansas reports in a letter I have just received from him, they are cordially invited by their native State to return to Wichita for the period Oct. 19-24, to attend the second annual Kansas Manufacturers Show. Moreover, Gov. Carlson tells me, there are 330 natives of Maine living in Kansas and his hospitable State would enjoy having relatives of these former Maine people go out to visit them during that same exposition. Kansas, he says, likes Maine people so well that one of them, Edmund N. Morrill, was once elected governor there. Governor Carlson is sure that former Kansans who go back home during the Manufacturers Show will be astonished at the progress their former home has made in recent years in industrial activity.

I am equally sure that those former Maine people now making their homes in Kansas, if they have not visited the Pine Tree State in recent years, would be surprised and pleased to see the progress we have made in agriculture, industry and in our famed recreation business. I am telling Gov. Carlson so.

RECALLING DAYS OF YORE

Former Camden Man Preserves Interesting History of the Penobscot Valley

(By Frank H. Miller)
(Chapter Seven)

History speaks of the very severe weather in the year 1876. Through January and February of that year it was somewhat like the Winter of 1947 and 1948, though that year must have been colder, for in 1876, on Feb. 18, two men walked on the ice from North Haven in Northport by way of Islesboro and on to Camden, arriving there in time for supper.

All will remember well the Winter of 1933 and 1934. The writer was clerk on the steamship Cornish, the Eastern Steamship Lines freighter, operating between Boston and Winterport. It was a Winter when the cold weather started early in January and did not let up until after the first of March.

The harbors of Camden, Belfast and Winterport were solid ice. For six weeks we made only two calls after leaving Boston—Rockland and Bucksport—by way of Eastern Penobscot Bay. We were obliged to leave the Camden and Belfast freight at Rockland and the Winterport and Bangor freight at Bucksport to be hauled over the road.

It was a hard Winter with plenty of snow. Of the nine Winters the Cornish ran on the Bangor line, that was the only season we were prevented by ice from making all the landings between Boston and Winterport.

While I am on this subject, it might be well to state that as far as is known, the steamship Camden is the only one left of the fleet that ran on the Bangor line during the last 20 years of its operation.

After the line was discontinued in 1935, the Belfast, renamed the Arrow, and the Camden, renamed the Comet, were sold and after extensive alterations were operated on a line between Providence and New York. During the war, the government took them over. It is known that the Cornish and Belfast have been lost.

There were five captains on the Bangor line during the last years of its operation. Capt. Edw. Rawley of Hampden, Capt. Charles Crockett of Winterport were the regular captains. Captain George Sawyer of Belfast, Capt. William Lakeman of Somerville, Mass. and Health and Welfare are contained in a pamphlet recently issued by that department. Fifty-one questions regarding the three programs of Old Age Assistance, Aid to Dependent Children and Aid to the Blind are answered in concise, non-technical language.

Public Assistance is defined as "aid furnished by means of cash payments to persons or families who are in need." A person is considered to be in need when he does not have enough income or resources to provide for his basic needs as determined by the standards set up by the department.

Information regarding the manner in which applications for Public Assistance may be obtained and filed and a summary of eligibility requirements for all three programs are valuable features of the pamphlet. Of particular interest is the outline of action which may be taken by the department when it is found that a recipient originally eligible for Old Age Assistance becomes possessed of resources in an amount which would render him ineligible.

The foreword lists the 16 district offices of the Division of Public Assistance and invites readers to call or write these offices for additional information which may also be secured at the State Office of the Department at Augusta. Copies of the pamphlet have been made available to the Maine Municipal Association for distribution to its members, or may also be secured at the district and State offices of the Department.

Capt. Bert Wall of Camden were the relief captains in 1926, and afterwards to 1935, instead of running the Belfast and Camden during the Winter, they used the Cornish as a freight boat on a two-trip-a-week schedule. Of the nine Winters she was commanded only by two masters—Captain Rawley and Captain Wall, who alternated each month. Of all the captains who ran on the Bangor line, there is only one living today—Captain Bert Wall.

Above, the S. S. Belfast is spoken of as having been lost but not many people know her last resting place. She came back from the Hawaiian Islands after the war to Oregon and Washington to be laid up. She was in tow from Puget Sound Feb. 13, 1947, when the towline parted and she went ashore near Long Beach, Washington and was a total loss.

When they were built over by the government for transport service, one would hardly recognize either the Belfast or Camden. One of the engineers, who ran on the Camden and Bangor, saw and recognized her for several years between Boston during the war in port at one of the Hawaiian Islands. He was given a chance to go aboard, but he said one would never know she was the same ship that carried so many passengers down East on the Atlantic Coast.

A great many people who have cottages at Bayside (Northport) have reason to remember the Belfast for it was she that made the last landing at the Northport dock, and she left it in such shape that it was never used for steamers afterwards. The writer was on board at the time. We left Boston in a heavy fog which stayed with us all night and the next day as far as Winterport. We could not see the docks at Rockland or Camden until we got right in front of them. The same conditions prevailed at Northport. As we approached the dock, barely moving, the ship took a slight sheer to the left and hooked her bow into the Northern side of the freight ship. The ship with her freight and passengers was so heavy that it split open the wharf and bulging about six feet before they could stop her.

Considering that the boats had to be almost flat bottom in order to get in and out of Bangor at low tide, it was only through sharp watchfulness of the officers that they were prevented from hooking on to more docks than Northport. I have heard some cottagers express the opinion that the split apart was carried out so to do away with Northport as a landing. While it is true there was very little business there and the stop during the Summer was more or less an accommodation, such accidents as that do not happen purposely.

I am going to leave Penobscot Bay for a few minutes and go about 10 miles inland to the town of Warren. It is an old town, and at one time, a busy one. Located at the head of navigation on the St. George's River, barks, brigs and ships were built there. It was one of the first towns in the State to have a woolen mill and a shoe shop. Those, together with the shippards, made the town prosperous.

Warren, on account of the business it was doing, needed a railroad. It had to haul its raw and manufactured products over the road to Bath for rail, and to Rockland for boats.

It was not until 1871 that a railroad was completed from Bath to Rockland—the Knox and Lincoln Railroad.

Warren like other towns, was asked to contribute $50,000 towards building the road, to which it agreed. The committee appointed by the town, made the provision that the depot must be within a mile of the village. As surveyed, the depot was placed at a point more than two miles from the village, so the town contributed nothing towards the road.

Before it was completed, the woolen mill with all of the buildings and several stores, burned to the ground. It was a heavy loss to the community, the business being locally owned, but it was rebuilt in a short time.

One thing that stood out prominently at the time of the fire was the absence of looting. Generally when so many things are strewn about, there is more or less pilfering, but it is known that there was practically none of it at that fire. Eaton tells about a man who carried away a bolt of cloth from the mill, but returned it a morning or two after the fire. One of the mill owners found the cloth on his doorstep, with a note on it which said: "Liquor took this home, sober brought it back."

The railroad reached Rockland late in October 1871 and immediately began carrying passengers, mail and express that had been hauled so many years from Bath by stages. The writer was talking with a man in Rockland recently whose father, when a young man, traveled frequently on the stage before the railroad was put through.

He said he heard his father speak so many times of feeling that he was getting near home when the stage got to Aunt Lydia's, which was the place between Waldoboro and Warren, when the horses were changed for the last time on the trip to Rockland. He didn't know her last name, and he didn't recall even hearing his father mention it, but he did say several times that Rockland passengers were so glad when the stage drove into Aunt Lydia's doorway, because it seemed as though they were getting near home, after a long ride. The distance between Rockland and Bath is 45 miles and the today we would call it a hard ride on a stage coach or any conveyance, other than an automobile.

There is a vast difference in crossing the Kennebec River today

New Engine, Styling Features In '49 Kaiser

A massive grille and bumpers are features of the new exterior design. A new instrument panel dominates the restyled interior.

This And That

Thought for the Day

"Take my will and make it Thine; I shall be no longer mine."
—Havergal.

Table Prayers

Keep us, dear Lord, this day without sin. Lead us in a plain path, and be so found in us that we may do all things according to Thy holy will; in Christ the Redeemer's name. Amen.

Two matrons were discussing a mutual friend.

"Dorothy looks furious," said one. "What's bothering her?"

"Oh," replied the other. "She just weighed herself on one of those scales with speaking attachments."

"What happened?"

"Well, when she stepped on the scales, the voice said: 'One at a time, please.'"

Jesus remains forever the greatest teacher of all the ages. What He asks of all of us is not just that we call Him "Lord, Lord," but that we actually practice His teachings and do the things which He has said to us.

When the storm of life is raging,
Be thou near;
When the billows loudly roar,
As they lash the rocky shore,
And we labor at the oar,
Be thou near.

When thro' the night we wander,
Be thou near;
When we tremble in affright
From the beacon, send the light
Of our Father's mercy bright,
And be near.

When for rest our souls are longing,
Be thou near;
Till life's troubled sea is past,
And in the harbor moored so fast,
Never again we'll feel the blast
Thou art near.

Tolerance is a virtue and should be guarded with care.

Who said life is not a song?
They know not how to sing it.
I think it is and I wish to avoid those off-key in it.

With life's deep mystery,
Through sorrow's cold despair
I have learned how to repair
Much in the hours that fling
Me songs. I have learned to sing
And I sing it.

Content is also a virtue. Try to see the bright side of events, that will help you on the way to contentment in your mind and in the outlook of future events.

.....

Be kindly in all things. Then you will be happy.

And the fog, myth-gray at the bolted door,
And the soft incessant sound of surf
Against the shore.
So it was when an Irish Queen Walked these corridors, climbed that stair,
Leaving no wraith of musk perfume.

No footprint there.
So may it be through a thousand years,
Of tumbling wind, and candlelight,
And the changeless chant of the sea shall be
As it is tonight.

Interests Veterans

Must Properly Complete the Forms Sent To Them By the V. A.

William H. Gobron, Adjutant Officer at the Veterans' Administration Center, Tonus, warns that veterans with disability of 60 percent or more will not be paid additional compensation benefits on account of dependents if they fail to properly complete forms forwarded to them by the VA and requiring a complete statement of marital and dependency status.

Gobron expressed concern at the large number of such veterans who are not completely executing and signing the forms before they return them to the VA. He pointed out that once the proof of a marriage, a child's birth, or dependency of a parent has been submitted to the VA, the same proof need not be submitted a second time; however, execution of the application forms forwarded by the VA is necessary regardless of whether proof of relation or dependency is being forwarded with the forms or has been forwarded previously to the VA for this or any other VA benefit.

The law involved which was approved July 2, 1948, provides additional compensation up to a maximum of $91 monthly on account of a wife, child or children, or dependent parent or parents, in cases of veterans having 60 percent or more service-connected disability.

Had Happy Outcome

Drive To Raise $800 For the Waldoboro Library Nets $1500

Waldoboro citizens have raised $1500 for the support of their Public Library, an everybody is happy over the generous response to a request which had named $800 as its goal.

The sum of $300 probably will be diverted for the Library budget 1948-49. The residue will be set aside to start a fund to effect the changes necessary to give the Library the use of the whole first floor in the block.

A committee will be appointed, made up of two carpenters, a mason, plumber, and a painter to make a complete survey of the structure and to recommend necessary repairs and approximate costs.

A comparison of the annual library budget with the budgets of some of the neighboring towns in 1947-48 shows Boothbay Harbor $1900; Damariscotta, $1542; Thomaston, $1970; Wiscasset, $2270; Waldoboro, $9640. Waldoboro is the largest town in this group and has the richest basic economy and yet it runs $600 behind the remaining towns.

Foster Jameson, board chairman, Mrs. Russell Cooney, ways and means chairman, issued a joint statement thanking all donors.

Color Scheme

No time of year concerns you, little moon,
Nor you, gay star, flashing your smile close by—
Though Winter's whitewash covers town and field,
And Autumn imitates a sunset sky.
You do not change, chameleon-like, to rose
Because of Summer's warm, beguiling voice,
Nor wear the tint of crocus in the Spring—
Your silver sameness is an artless choice
